

To the attention of the Young Lawyer
(he who is still possessed by the Ideal of Justice)

(September 2026)

Except in such rare but unfortunate occasions when she is closely under the public eye, Justice is but a board game between professional players that excludes all outsiders and the reality of cases, with rules devised by the players themselves, a game without a referee in which form substitutes for substance, although always at the exclusive expense of the watcher.